

My dear Don;

Sunday,
April 27, 1981

Thank you for your letter.
The biggest lessons of my life were to teach tolerance of others and myself. Sidney (husband) used to say I was hard to live up to because of my striving for perfection. I still strive - but don't fall apart when it fails.

all of my life there have been people to protect me.

That, too, goes on and on.
I am thankful.

This is a great place to live -

The spa area was once a fashionable health area - for the wealthy.
What a contrast it must be as to the people enjoying
it. All people hobbling around on walkers and canes - and some wheel chairs. 9 am one of the few who can enjoy the pool - (I a large well kept one)

Things seem to be going well for Georgie and Sid and most of the grandchildren.
I still have seen the "greats".

When I told Walter Scott that I didn't want ~~to see~~ the children to see me as an old woman. He said in his usual way of making a point. "How can they possibly have a young great grandmother?"

So be it

Love

Marge
