My dear Don,

In case you may not understand why I was shocked by the tone of your last letter, it is only fair to tell you that I was shocked. I suddenly dawned on me that you are not interested in truth — but only the sensational. There is no use for me to try to tell you how people look to me — for to you they are different people. I was probably wrong to answer your first letter. But I can hope it served a purpose.

All is well for me. Love to you both. I hope you can forget Ernest H. and live your own life.

Marge.
