JUNIOR COLLEGE NEWS

Applications are now being accepted at DBJC for the second semester which begins Jan. 9.

"It is important that new students complete the application form immediately to prevent delays in registration scheduled for January 5," said J. A. Robbins. Also new students in the college di-vision are required to complete a placement test prior to formal scheduling. The next testing date is Dec. 29 for college division students.

The Mary Karl School at Daytona Beach Junior College has enrolled 21,000 students since it became a division of DBJC in 1958. Last year 3,200 students were enrolled in the division's day trades and evening short courses.

Lawrence Reynolds and Winston Bridges of the DBJC faculty will co-lecture a fully accredited college credit course in International Relations beginning Jan. 10 on radio station WNDB. Area high school graduates may register on campus Jan. 4 and 5, according to a college spokesman.

The course requires no pre-requisites and also will be valuable for non-credit listeners.

Lectures will deal with the nature of international relations, foreign policies and the dynamics of nationalism in present day world politics.

There will be special emphasis on world problems leading to an understanding of the cultural aspiration of the new nation states in Asia and the Middle East.

Bob Troup, Director of Community Relations at Daytona Beach Junior College is one of three Floridians named to the Florida Junior College Council on Public Relations.

Dr. Dayton Y. Roberts of the State Department of Education, Division of Junior Colleges, is chairman of the newly created organization.

Also named to the council was Andrian Beaudoine, Director of Public Information of Florida Junior College at Jacksonville.

Liquid nitrogen is being used to cool railroad refrigerator cars.

A History of Daytona Beach, Florida

The first recorded settlement in Volusia County was the Dr. Andrew Turnbull colony about 1767 a few miles south of Daytona which existed only a few years. This Halifax area history actually began in 1867 when Alfred E. Johnson purchased from Oliver C. Swift the Heriot Tract of 1071 acres on the west bank of the Halifax River, originally a Spanish grant to Francis Kerr.

This tract in 1858 sold for the sum of $2,500. With Johnson was associated James Sawyer, but Sawyer soon sold his interest to his partner and went to what was then known as Port Orange to reside. Johnson erected a log cabin on a shell mound where is at present the corner of North Beach Street and First Avenue, the first residence built in what is today Daytona Beach.

At the close of the War Between the States, in March, 1865, Messrs. J. A. and Charles Bostrom, Dr. J. M. Hawkes and J. H. Fowler, all of whom came from Hilton Head, South Carolina, became interested in the subject of orange growing in Florida, and came to St. Augustine for the purpose of selecting land for that purpose. J. A. Bostrom, in company with John Mollison, of St. Augustine, started on an exploring expedition down the East Coast. Hauling their boat across by ox-team from the Matanzas to Bulow Creek they embarked and sailed down the Halifax and Hillsborough Rivers to Dummitt's Grove, at the head of the Indian River, the finest grove, at that time, in Florida. They, however, did not like the Indian River country, and returned to what was known as the Samuel Williams grant where most of mainland Daytona Beach is now located, and afterwards landed on the opposite shore at what was then known as "Hog-Pen," and there located a homestead in Mr. Mollison's name. This ill-savored name Mr. Bostrom changed to the more appropriate one of "Silver Beach," for, he said, "the Rose of the Halifax" would not have smelled as sweet by its first name.

It was in April, 1870, that Dr. J. M. Hawkes, long a resident of Hawkes Park, to the south of New Smyrna, met Mathias Day, of Mansfield, Ohio, in a Jacksonville hotel. Mr. Day and a couple of associates were looking for Florida investments and Dr. Hawkes persuaded them to visit the Halifax country. They spent several days looking over the territory along the Halifax and Hillsborough Rivers, and Mr. Day became especially interested in an old sugar plantation, known as the Samuel Williams grant, the mill of which was located on Ridgewood Avenue in what is now Daytona Beach.

Mr. Day went to St. Augustine and communicated with the owners of the grant for its purchase. This grant contained 3,200 acres and was made by Governor Jose Coppinger on April 18, 1817, to Samuel Williams, Williams' plantation house was near the Halifax River, about the present corner of Loomis Avenue and South Beach Street, and was burned by the Indians in 1885.

Upon these two Spanish grants—Samuel Williams and Francis Kerr—the town of Daytona was built.

After acquiring the property, Mr. Day returned to Mansfield and set about the work of colonizing his newly acquired possessions. Upon his return a thatched-roof hotel was soon built known as the Colony House, and this was operated for many years by Mrs. Mary Hoag.

The hotel faced the river on Beach Street, just south of Loomis Avenue. It was afterwards known as the Palmetto House (because its roof was originally thatched with palmetto fans) and was burned during 1925.

The first residence built in the colony of Mathias Day was the Riley Peck home on South Beach Street. Mathias Day was the founder of the town, but Alfred Johnson was the first settler.

The name Daytona applied to the settlement in the early years was in honor of Mathias Day, the founder, and was selected in 1872 by Mrs. William Jackson, Mrs. Riley Peck and J. A. Bostrom who chose it from three names under discussion, viz: "Daytown," "Daytonia" and "Daytona.'. It was incorporated in 1876.

Even in 1883, communication was the outer world was difficult, although the stage road from Daytona to Volusia Landing on the St. Johns, with a fork to John Smiths Landing on the Tomoka that led to Crescent City, was somewhat improved. A ferry had been established across the Tomoka, putting the Old King's Road into use, thus shortening the tedious journey to St. Augustine.

The territory across the Halifax on the peninsula (beach side) had early begun to be settled. J. D. Mitchell, in 1870, built a house on the homestead of his father, Alonzo Mitchell, and in 1873, J. W. Smith took up a homestead now in the heart of peninsula Daytona Beach that he called Memento.

Daytona's growth slowly increased prior to 1896 when it took on new life with the coming of Charles G. Burgoyne, wealthy New York printer. For 20 years he was the outstanding benefactor, founder of tourist entertainment (band concerts), donor of Casino Burgoyne, sponsor of Elks Lodge, beach racing, president of East Coast Auto Association, commodore Halifax River Yacht Club, and Mayor of Daytona.

The constructive influence of Henry M. Flagler's expansive enterprise began in this area in 1890 with his acquisition of Ormond Hotel, his purchase of U. J. White's primitive railroad from East Palatka to Daytona, and his building of the steel railroad bridge over the St. Johns River. The bridge opened Jan. 20 1890. White's little railroad had reached Daytona Dec. 31 1886. Flagler improved it and made it the beginning of his Florida East Coast Railroad from Jacksonville to Key West, terminating there on Jan. 22 1912.

Early recognizing the necessity for public schools, as a majority of the original settlers had families, steps were soon taken for their establishment. The first school was taught by J. W. Smith, in 1872, as a private school. In 1874 the first public school was organized and taught by Mrs. G. R. Puchett. The first school building was erected on Canal Street, (Palmetto Avenue). The building was also used as a place of worship and for public gatherings.

Daytona became a municipal corporation July 26, 1876, although the name had been accepted for some time previous to the incorporation meeting. Of the 25 voters present at the memorable meeting over 60 years ago, 23 voted in favor of incorporation and two against. The first ordinance accepted by the town council related to the "public peace, public health and public morals."

The first newspaper to be published in Daytona was the Halifax Journal, started by F. A. Mann, Feb. 15, 1883. At that time there were 13 stores in Daytona. E. M. Snow, father of W. H. Snow, a Daytona Beach business man of today, conducted a grocery store. The Snow grocery was built on piling over the Halifax River and faced the west.

The first tax rate—established March 15, 1877—was 15 mills on the dollar, according to old records. The early income of the town was small, being only $1,144.16 during the three first years of the incorporation. The total expenditures for the three years amounted to $907.31, leaving a balance of $236.85 in the municipal treasury.

It was in 1887 that the first bridge was built across the Halifax River from Daytona to the Peninsula. It was called the Central Bridge and was built from Fairview Avenue in Daytona to Seabreeze Avenue, now Main Street, on the Peninsula, in Old Daytona Beach.

In 1899 the South Bridge was built from City

WELCOME TO THE HALIFAX AREA

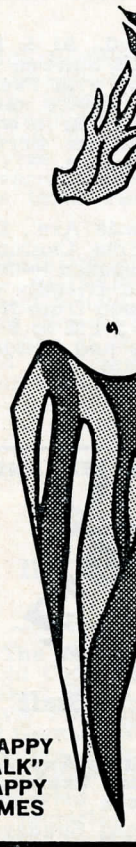

Our hand is stretched out to you, wherever you are, to bid you a thousand welcomes to the Halifax Area, the foremost all year resort areas of Florida.

Our merchants will greet you with courtesy, with fair dealing with the same excellent brands of goods that you receive in your own home town.

We want every person who visits us — whether it be for a day or for an entire season — to go away with the pleasurable feeling that he or she has spent pleasant hours with us.

Enjoy your visit with us and come back to see us often.

A HISTORY OF DAYTONA BEACH, FLA.

Island to the Peninsula, and it is said that H. M. Flagler gave assistance.

In 1888, C. A. Ballough had built a beach cottage on the ocean front about the site of the present Daytona Plaza Hotel.

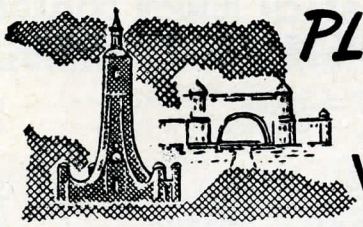

At the dawn of the century there were no streets or highways other than sand trails. The advent of the automobile resulted in improved roads in Volusia County. Motor vehicles began coming to Daytona in the late 1890's. In 1902 R. E. Olds and Alexander Winton, Ormond Hotel guests, engaging in beach auto contests tied at 57 mph. The following year Winton set the speed record of 68 mph. That year (1903) Florida East Coast Automobile Association was formed to promote permanent local beach racing. For over 30 years world records were made by U.S. and foreign contestants until in 1935 Sir Malcolm Campbell of England recorded maximum speed of 276 mph. The next year Bill France of Washington, D.C. area began his Daytona Beach racing career; established NASCAR Speed Weeks in 1948; completed and opened Daytona International Speedway in 1959. That same year Birthplace of Speed Association was formed and inaugurated the annual Antique Car Meet at historic Ormond (Hotel) Garage during each Thanksgiving weekend.

Consolidated Daytona Beach became effective with the first meeting of the City Commission Jan. 4, 1926. From three lesser municipalities, each with its own officials, sprang one united city under a single government. Daytona, Seabreeze and Daytona Beach and the smaller municipalities vanished.

For years Daytona was widely known as the prettiest winter resort but later the area became a most popular year round resort and rapidly growing business sections and residential communities with unlimited prospects for greater expansion.

IF IT'S FISHING YOU WANT

Some of the finest fishing in the 50 states is found right here in Daytona Beach, and no fishing license is required.

With the exception of the enjoyment of the "World's Most Famous Beach" and our unexcelled climate, fishing is the main attraction for our tourists and natives alike. There is a local proverb that proclams, "Wherever there is water there is fishing." Whether you possess a "cracker pole" or the latest and most expensive tackle, there are plenty of fish to be taken from these waters. Visitors from inland may wonder what kind of bait is used. First choice is live shrimp. Next choice is dead shrimp. And the best bait for sheepshead is fiddler crab. Cut mullet (cut into strips) is also used for some of the larger fish. Any of this bait is obtainable at any fish camp or at some tackle stores. Plug fishing is also very popular with the more experienced fishermen. . . Several different kinds of salt water plugs are available at any of the camps or tackle stores.

The beautiful Halifax River offers different thrills for every type of fishing enthusiast. . . Fishing from any of the six bridges, docks piers, rowboats, trolling, surf fishing, casting or still fishing.

Seldom does a moment pass day or nght when there are not at least a half dozen anglers testing their skill on the bridges. Three fishing piers in the area are excellent spots for trout, sheepshead, drum, bass, whiting, bluefish, pompano and for extra thrills occasionally a tarpon or shark is hooked.

South on the river are many fine fishing camps where you may secure boats, motors, bait and advice where the big ones have been caught. Also advice on how to rig your tackle and other pertinent information. Several camps on the Peninsula may be reached by driving south on Atlantic Ave. toward the Lighthouse. Others may be reached by driving south on Peninsula Drive. The mainland camps may be reached by driving south on U. S. Route 1.

Good fishing is also provided a few miles north of Daytona Beach on the Tomoka River and Bulow Creek where the water is brackish. Trout, snook, bass and tarpon are found there.

Some of the best deep sea fishing anywhere in the state of Florida is to be found right here in Daytona Beach. Charter boats are available with experienced Captains at any of the fish camps. They know where the big catches are to be made off shore, including dolphin, tarpon, red snapper, grouper, Spanish and king mackerel, cobia and many others. A full days fun and excitement begins early in the morning and ends when the sun begins to sink in the west. Surf fishing can be enjoyed anywhere up and down the 23-mile long beach. Wade out a few yards and give your line a heave into that pounding Atlantic ocean. Whiting, channel bass, bluefish, pompano, trout plus many others may be caught in the surf. In fact, you never know exactly what you're going to hook on to. Visitors and residents of Daytona Beach may enjoy some of the best black bass and fresh water fishing anywhere in the country by driving twenty to thirty miles to the west on U.S. 92 in the neighborhood of DeLand. The St. Johns River and nearby lakes provide world renowned fishing and its only a few miles away. A valid Florida fresh water license is required. Salt water fishing requires no license.
